3 Movement Components and Skill Development 53

Objectives 53Introducing the Movement Map 53*Body Movements: Ways the Body Moves 55

- Locomotor Skills 55
- Axial Skills 55
- Manipulative Skills 56

Body Awareness: What the Body Can Do 64

- Transferring Body Weight 64
- Balancing or Weight Bearing 64
- Flight 64
- Shapes 79
- Focus 79

Space Awareness: Where the Body Moves 79

- Personal Space 79
- General Space 79
- Directions 80
- Levels 80
- Pathways 80
- Size 80

Qualities of Movement: How the Body Moves 80

- Time or Speed of Movement 80
- Effort or Force of Movement 81
- Free Flow and Bound Flow 81

Relationships: How the Body Relates 81

- Matching Movements 81
- Contrasting Movements 81
- Simultaneous and Successive Movements 82

6 Physical Education Curriculum 167

Objectives 167

What Does a Quality Elementary Physical Education Program Look Like? 168

- Program Characteristic 1: Developmentally Appropriate Activities 168
- Program Characteristic 2: Skill and Fitness Improvement 169
- Program Characteristic 3: Promotion of Physical Activity 170
- Program Characteristic 4: Facilitation of Learning 170
- Program Characteristic 5: Maximization of Active Learning Time 170
- Program Characteristic 6: Indirect Competition and Cooperation 171
- Program Characteristic 7: Inclusion of Many Movement Forms 172
- Program Characteristic 8: Integration of Academic Content 172
- Program Characteristic 9: Ongoing Student and Program Assessment 172
- Program Characteristic 10: Compliance with Federal Mandates 172
- Program Characteristic 11: Appropriate Instructional Time 175
- Program Characteristic 12: Qualified Teachers 175

Who Is Responsible for Quality Physical Education? 175

How to Build a Quality Elementary Physical Education Program 175

- Selecting a Guiding Philosophy 176
- Establishing School-Level Program Goals 176
- Determining Grade-Level Goals and Benchmarks 177

- Developing the Scope and Sequence for Program Content 178
- Writing Lesson Plans 182
