

Preface

As one of the best-selling Introductory Spanish titles, Puntos de partida, or Puntos, as it is commonly referred to, has offered over a million students a starting place for their language studies. Today, the Spanish classroom is changing as are the teaching and learning experiences. Professors are offering more hybrid and online courses, technology is providing functionality we could only dream about a few years ago, and the students we teach are ever-changing. To complement the changing environment, materials for inside and outside the classroom must change and evolve as well. By employing a wide array of research tools including surveys, focus groups, symposia and ethnographic studies, we listened to our customers—students and professors—to determine the most effective components of Puntos and to take an important leap forward in digital innovation.

WHAT DID WE LEARN FROM THE RESEARCH?

Introductory Spanish instructors want to motivate students to develop confidence and ownership of their communication skills.

- 40% of faculty said they are dissatisfied with their students' ability to communicate in Spanish when they complete the introductory course and would like a tool that helps their students gain the confidence they need to successfully communicate in Spanish beyond the classroom.

Introductory Spanish classrooms consist of students with varying levels of language proficiency.

- 48% of faculty said they spend more time than they would like dealing with variation in student preparedness and would like a tool that helps them mitigate these differences.

Instructors strive for consistent learning outcomes across classroom settings, whether their courses are face-to-face, hybrid, or fully online.

- 60% of faculty said they find it difficult to achieve consistent course outcomes across different course formats and would like a tool that helps them deliver a seamless learning experience regardless of how the class is delivered.

Many instructors would like to more efficiently handle issues of course administration.

- 43% of faculty said they are spending more time than they would like on administrative tasks related to delivering their courses and would like a tool that helps them better manage their workload.

THE RESULT?

The result is, simply put, Puntos. Take a fresh look at Puntos—it's everything you wanted.

Puntos . . .

- breaks new ground to meet the changing needs of face-to-face, hybrid, and online Spanish programs.
- offers students more opportunities to develop their communication skills via TelePuntos, a new integrated video section with corresponding in-text and digital activities.
- innovates through LearnSmart, a first-of-its-kind adaptive learning system within Connect Spanish that adjusts to the learning needs of every student in every classroom.

Puntos—it WILL take you there!

Puntos motivates students to develop their communication skills.

“[Connect Spanish] is a pioneering program that will take the teaching to a new amazing level in which the learning will be easier to evaluate by both the student and the teacher. It will also allow the student to feel less fear when speaking, which is the most difficult skill to acquire—due to inhibition. It could be revolutionary.”

Lucero Tenorio,
Oklahoma State University

In national surveys and through symposia, we've listened to over a thousand instructors and professors speak about their experiences and challenges in teaching introductory Spanish. 84% stated that developing communication skills in Spanish is a top goal for the course. 79% indicated that the development of cultural competence was a “very important” or “extremely important” course outcome, but only 49% of professors are satisfied with how their current program integrates culture. This research, in addition to anecdotes from the classroom, reveals that students with a positive attitude toward the target culture are more motivated to participate in class, continue their language study beyond the required sequence, and retain their language skills longer after finishing their language study.

Relying upon the power of digital solutions, we introduce Mundo interactivo, task-based scenarios available in Connect Spanish. In these scenarios, students play the role of a television production assistant as they prepare the reporting segments for Salu2, a morning talk-show based on our new video program.

Students are transported into an immersive, story-based world where they experience the thrill of mastering relevant, task-based communication scenarios in real-world contexts. With functionality like synchronous and asynchronous video chat, students engage in communication practice online. This experience helps students gain the confidence to use their Spanish skills in the classroom and in their communities. Professors have access to a suite of media-rich content and tools to structure their students' experience and provide targeted feedback at just the right moments to maximize learning.

Professors also asked for more activities devoted to the four skill areas, and we responded. Within the text, Puntos offers instructors the necessary tools to help their students develop communicative proficiency in all four skill areas: listening and reading comprehension, and written and oral production. In each chapter, the new A leer, A escuchar, and A escribir sections expose students to written and aural language, drawing attention to reading, listening, and writing skills.

"I am pleased to see that there are more communicative activities in place and that instructors have more tools and options to work with."

Martha Guerrero-Phlaum,
Santa Ana College

To give students more opportunities to communicate and thus improve their communicative proficiency, we've added new communicative objectives in the En este capítulo section of the chapter openers to let students know what they should be able to do by the end of the chapter. The new En su comunidad activity at the end of the Un poco de todo section asks students to interact and communicate directly with a Spanish-speaker from their community about some cultural topic and then report their findings. The new two-page TelePuntos spread gives students opportunities to interact and communicate about each accompanying Salu2 video segment, and the Producción personal feature prompts students to go out into their own communities and create their own video segments, based on the topics presented in the Salu2 segments.

"You blow my mind with how well you have integrated the personal and the '3Ps' of the National Standards! Products and Practices are clearly linked to Perspectives and/or the environments of the featured countries."

Janet Burke Norden,
Baylor University

Puntos addresses students' varying levels of language proficiency.

Introductory Spanish classrooms typically contain a mix of true beginners, false beginners, and even heritage speakers in the same classroom. Based on our research, we learned that the varying levels of language proficiency among students represent one of the greatest course challenges for the majority of introductory Spanish instructors.

“The adaptive diagnostic tool is very promising. It could be fruitfully added as a review tool, as tutoring support, or if sold as a freestanding item might even be used to place out of courses or to provide online testing. It provides the individualized feedback students need to take responsibility for their own learning and it stresses mastery.”

Sandra Watts, University of North Carolina-Charlotte

Puntos offers LearnSmart, a powerful adaptive learning system, beta-tested by over 1,600 students. As the student completes each chapter's grammar and vocabulary modules, LearnSmart identifies the main grammatical structures and vocabulary words that warrant more practice, based on student performance, and provides an individualized study program.

As the professor you can assign LearnSmart or you can simply say, “Go to LearnSmart and work on preterite vs. imperfect”—and off they go! LearnSmart allows you to quickly and easily choose how much content is covered within each module and to dig into very specific aspects of each grammar point rather than testing on an overall grammar point.

You will know exactly what your students know and where they continue to struggle.

What did we learn from our beta test students?

- 68% agree or strongly agree that they were actively engaged in the LearnSmart activities.
- 75% agree or strongly agree that LearnSmart increased their comprehension by studying vocabulary and grammar outside of the classroom.
- 93% believe LearnSmart to be an effective way to review and learn concepts.
- 90% would recommend LearnSmart to a friend.

“Loved it! Great for future students!”

Student, Columbus State Community College

In addition to addressing the variety of student levels in your classes, the Puntos program also appeals to students with diverse study habits. According to ethnographic research conducted by McGraw-Hill, four student types have emerged across disciplines.

Forward Learners

Interrupted Learners

Short-Term Learners

Delayed Learners

We took into consideration the diversity of student populations across the country and even within a single classroom when we designed Puntos. For example, for the Forward Learners, we provide a wealth of practice activities online and guide their workflow with options for additional practice. For the Interrupted Learners, we offer content downloadable to a laptop, iPod, or iPad, giving them the ability to study anywhere, anytime. Short-Term Learners can utilize LearnSmart to hone their weak areas so that they can use their study time more efficiently. And when Delayed Learners are cramming at the last minute, they will find all the study tools they need in one convenient location.

Puntos appeals to the individual needs of a wide variety of students by presenting interactive content and diagnostic tools that bring everyone to the same level of mastery.

“It suddenly started making sense when I started to use LearnSmart. I received a 95 on the essay after I started using LearnSmart, it is very helpful!”

Aaron De La Garza, Student, Portland Community College

Puntos helps you administer your course more efficiently and effectively.

Syllabus creation. Communicating with students outside of class. Assigning and grading homework. These are just a few of the administrative tasks that occupy instructors' time and diminish valuable opportunities to enrich teaching and learning experiences. Imagine a resource that efficiently handles these tasks and does so in a way that also allows you to easily administer your course to your goals and needs. Nearly half of the instructors surveyed told us that course administration issues are a huge obstacle to effective teaching. 91% of instructors stated that digital should save time in administering the course, but only 61% are satisfied with their current solution. 83% of instructors state they rely upon reporting features to manage their course, but only 60% are satisfied with their program.

Connect Spanish, as part of the Puntos program, provides the online tools to reduce the amount of time and energy that instructors have to invest in administering their course. For example, when creating assignments, instructors can easily sort according to a variety of parameters that are important to their course in particular.

You can sort and assign based on language skill, grammar structure, vocabulary theme, the amount of time the activity takes, or the activity type (multiple-choice, fill-in-the-blank, and so on). Once you create your section assignments, you can easily share your course with your colleagues, and as a course coordinator you can quickly see how all sections are progressing through the course assignments.

Blackboard

Do More

As a complement to Connect Spanish, McGraw-Hill and Blackboard have teamed up. What does this mean for your Introductory Spanish course?

- 1. Your life, simplified. Now you and your students can access all McGraw-Hill Connect content directly from within your Blackboard course. Say goodbye to the days of logging in to multiple applications, and say hello to true single sign-on.
- 2. Deep integration of content and tools. Not only do you get single sign-on with Connect, you also get deep integration of McGraw-Hill content and content engines right in Blackboard. Whether you're choosing a book for your course or building Connect assignments, all the tools you need are right where you want them—inside of Blackboard.
- 3. Seamless gradebooks. Are you tired of keeping multiple gradebooks and manually synchronizing grades into Blackboard? We thought so. When a student completes an integrated Connect assignment, the grade for that assignment automatically (and instantly) feeds into your Blackboard grade center.
- 4. A solution for everyone. Whether your institution is already using Blackboard or you just want to try Blackboard on your own, we have a solution for you. McGraw-Hill and Blackboard can now offer you easy access to industry leading technology and content, whether your campus hosts it or we do. Be sure to ask your local McGraw-Hill representative for details.

“The time-saving facets of having seamless coordination of online work and Blackboard are an excellent improvement, especially as we are offering Puntos online now . . . The new digital offerings are a necessary and welcome improvement as Web and hybrid classes increase in number, and also to keep up with a technological medium that students can relate to more easily.”

Catherine Ortiz, University of Texas at Arlington

Puntos helps you achieve consistent learning outcomes across diverse instructional settings.

The context for teaching and learning can take many forms in today's world, including traditional face-to-face courses, fully online courses, and hybrid offerings. Nearly one-third of programs across the country are now offering hybrid or online sections. Given these trends, we created a unique online delivery of the Puntos program to provide consistent outcomes no matter which of these formats is used.

The content of Puntos is comprised of an array of integrated print and digital offerings, giving you the maximum flexibility to choose the most appropriate format for your courses. At the same time, you can be assured that regardless of the format, all content is directly tied to course learning objectives that are consistent across all components of the program.

Can students in an online course attain the same level of oral proficiency as those in a traditional classroom setting? With Puntos, the answer is yes! For example, in-class communicative activities are replicated in the online environment, allowing students to pair up with virtual partners for communication practice.

"I am very pleased with your continuous innovations and improvement of this program. Detecting needs, asking instructors, keeping updated with technology are all pluses . . . It's the very best program out there."

Lucero Tenorio,
Oklahoma State University

The video program is another example of flexibility: whether you have your students view the video online or you prefer to show the video in class, you can incorporate it into your face-to-face or online sections, depending on what works for you. Related activities can be done in class or online, so students receive the same amount of exposure and practice no matter what the class format.

“Students also have an opportunity to put different skills into practice: listening, speaking, writing, and reading, sometimes within one single task. Connect is flexible enough to be used . . . in a F2F [face-to-face] course, . . . being the sole teaching and learning tool for an online course.”
